DEFENSIVE PLANTING

The concept of Defensive Planting is simple, but highly effective – providing an attractive natural defence that is simple, inexpensive and very effectual. A dozen varieties of very prickly plants are shown below – each chosen for their impenetrability and attractiveness. Plant them under vulnerable windows and allow to grow to sill height. You can also plant them around boundaries where intruders will be unable to pass through (or over) the plants without injuring themselves.

Berberis Juliana - Prickly yellow, early flowering species. Evergreen with shiny dark leaves (4-6')	Mahonia Bealei; Winter Sun - Prickly evergreen with yellow fragrant flowers in winter (4-5')	Ulex Europaeus, Common Gorse - A vicious spiny plant that provides excellent protection for boundaries. Flowers March-May (4-5')	Pyracantha - A climbing evergreen with yellow, red or orange berries. White flowers in May on thorny branches. Very useful on fences and walls. (10-15')

Hippanphae Rhamniodes; Sea Buckthorn - Grows in any soil and is wind resistant. Silver foliage and plentiful thorns. Plant in groups of three to obtain berries.	Berberis Ottawensis Superba - Use this as a hedge or individual shrub. Deciduous barbed plant with purple foliage. Yellow flowers in spring. (5-6') Allow two plants per metre	Berberis Stenophylla - Use as a hedge or shrub. A graceful evergreen with long, arching, prickly branches. Masses of yellow flowers in Spring. (4-6') allow two plants per metre.	Berberis Gagnepainii - A small, dense, prickly evergreen, suitable also as a low hedge. Impenetrable! Allow two plants per metre.

Crataegus Monogyna; Common Hawthorn - An impenetrable thorny hedge. Fast growing, with fragrant flowers in May and June and red haws in the autumn. Plant in a staggered row, 4 to one metre.	Rosa Fruhlings Gold-Yellow - Fragrant old fashioned rose. Densely prickly for hedges or individual shrubs, up to 2-3m high.	Rosa Rugosa Rubra Crimson - Fragrant old fashioned rose. Densely prickly for hedges or individual shrubs, up to 2m high.	Rosa Blanc Double de Coubert - White fragrant old fashioned rose. Densely prickly for hedges or individual shrubs, up to 2m high.

Most good garden centres should supply these plants. Check the growing seasons and ensure that they are lifted at the optimum time. October to April is usually the best time for planting, but seek advice from your nurseryman.
